Dahlias. The variety of border hybrids now available offer a dazzling display of colour and form to every gardener, and no special skills are required to cultivate or propagate them. In colour the flowers range from vibrant pinks and crimsons through rich hues of mauves and purples, to the pastel shades of lilacs pinks and creams, in size from the tiny pompons to huge exhibition blooms up to 30cm (1ft) or more across.

Dahlias are excellent for providing cut flowers and will bloom vigorously throughout the summer until the first frosts— in the right conditions a single plant may produce up to 100 blooms.

Their various flower types (shown) form the basis of the recognised groups.

Ball. Flattened to spherical, fully double flowers have densely packed, almost tubular petals.		Cactus. Fully double flowers, have narrow pointed petals that can be straight or curl inwards and have recurved edges for more than two-

Decorative. Fully double flowers have broad, flat petals that incurve slightly at their margins and usually reflex to the stem.		Single. Each flower usually has 8-10 broad petals surrounding an open, central disc.
Anemone. Fully double flowers each have one or more rings of flattened ray petals surrounding a dense group of shorter, tubular, petals usually longer than the disc petals found in single dahlias.		Water Lily. Fully double flowers have large generally sparse ray petals, which are flat or with slightly incurved or recurved margins, giving the flower a flat appearance.
